Gildan Activewear Announces New Distribution Center and 250 Jobs in Charleston, South Carolina.

(Charlotte, NC. February 11, 2010). Gildan Activewear announced today that it would locate its newest distribution center in Berkeley County (Charleston), South Carolina. The project will generate approximately 250 new jobs for the region. The company has already begun the hiring process and distribution operations at the facility are expected to begin in late February.

“This state-of-the-art facility will be utilized to support the company’s strategic initiative to become a major full-line supplier of basic family apparel for national mass-market retailers. This 580,000-square-foot building will serve to meet Gildan’s current storage requirements and can be expanded to accommodate further long-term growth requirements. We appreciate all the support we have received from state and local officials and we trust that Berkeley County will provide us with a good business environment,” said Glenn Chamandy, President and Chief Executive Officer for Gildan Activewear.

“Gildan Activewear’s decision to open a new facility in Berkeley County is a positive indication that our state’s business-friendly climate and exceptional market access are working to attract new investment and job opportunities. South Carolina’s central location between New York and Miami offers access to some of the fastest growing markets in the country and we are confident that the state’s resources will help Gildan compete and succeed. We welcome Gildan to the state’s business community and wish them much success in their endeavors here,” said Joe Taylor, South Carolina’s Secretary of Commerce.

“We’re proud of Gildan’s accomplishments and honored to have supported their efforts. Just as important, we appreciated the assistance provided by South Carolina and the economic development officials representing the Charleston region. They demonstrate their pro-business approach on every new opportunity and this was no exception. It’s a fabulous win for Gildan and the community,” commented Patric Zimmer, President of Development Advisors, LLC.
